The exchange between Taipei First Girls High School and Osaka prefectural Kitano High School took place on July 26th. Although the weather was affected by the coming typhoon, it wouldn't affect the mood of the ambassadors. With great excitement and carefulness, the ambassadors had gotten ready for their first reception.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, it's been 5 years since the students of Kitano High School visited TFG, therefore, the ambassadors cherished the opportunity to interact with the foreign visitors. In the beginning ceremony, Yamamoto Misato, the teacher of the Kitano High School greeted the ambassadors in Chinese. The sincerity of the guests truly moved the ambassadors. The principle also encouraged them to seize the precious chance and learn from each other.

The TFG student ambassadors first introduced Taiwan, TFG, and themselves in a presentation. They mentioned plenty of iconic food and tourist attractions in Taiwan, as well as some fun facts and activities of TFG, hoping to leave a friendly and professional impression. The Kitano High School also shared some of their special school events and the appealing tourist attractions in Osaka. Moreover, students of Kitano High School also showed the unique type of jump ropes in their school. Some of the ambassadors and the principal had a great time experiencing the rare tradition. The ambassadors got acquainted with their culture and were astonished by the various customs in different countries.

Afterwards, the ambassadors toured Kitano High School around our campus and history room, explaining the lifestyle, historical events and architecture in TFG. Fortunately, it wasn't raining heavily, so the ambassadors could introduce the beauty and history of the architecture to the guests. The guests from Kitano High School paid high attention to the tour, and the ambassadors spared no effort to share all the details and interesting things of TFG to the guests.

Next, the ambassadors exchanged gifts and had further conversations with the students from Kitano High School, discussing experiences, fun facts, and cultural differences. They also traded their social media accounts to keep in touch. Under heated discussions and cheerful laughter, the communication time came to an end. After taking group photos, the ambassadors and the guests head to their next destination—National Taiwan Museum.

The guide introduced them to the history of the museum, the discovery process and discoverers of Taiwanese plants and animals, and the culture of the aborigines. They were amazed by the magnificent building and abandoned assets in this beautiful island, and gratitude for the predecessors' effort in gaining the information we learned today. The tour drew a perfect end for the exchange. The ambassadors and guests from Kitano High School said farewell reluctantly and looked forward to seeing each other in the future.
